Just a stone's throw from Richmond Park – the largest Royal park in London – this six-bedroom property is an enviable family house. An elegant central staircase connects the four floors, each of which has sky-high ceilings and huge sash windows. Alongside the double bedrooms (with their marble en suites) there is a self-contained flat perfect for a live-in au pair or older relative. Meanwhile, the social areas of the house are the stuff off dinner party dreams; a super-sized kitchen/living area opening onto an iron balustrade verandah; a vast entertainment room; a wine cellar. And just in case running in Richmond Park isn't to your liking, there's also a built-in gym and a sprawling landscaped garden.
